SESSION DESCRIPTION:

Artificial Intelligence (AI) stands at the forefront of transformative global innovation, yet its responsible and sustainable deployment remains a defining challenge of our era. This topic brings together researchers, policymakers, technologists, and industry leaders to explore how ethical and inclusive AI systems can drive progress toward the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. The session emphasizes the integration of AI ethics, green computing, human-centric design, and equitable access to ensure that technological advancements benefit all sectors of society especially in low- and middle-income regions. From climate action and sustainable cities to quality education and good health and well-being, participants will discuss how intelligent systems can be harnessed to achieve long-term global resilience, fairness, and sustainability.

RECOMMENDED TOPICS:

Topics to be discussed in this special session include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Green AI and Carbon-Neutral Computing for Climate Action
- Ethical and Explainable AI for Inclusive Governance
- AI for Sustainable Healthcare and Pandemic Resilience
- Responsible AI in Education: Bridging Digital and Learning Divides
- Smart and Sustainable Cities through AI-Driven Urban Systems
- AI for Renewable Energy Optimization and Smart Grids
- Human-Centered AI Design: Equity, Ethics, and Empowerment
- AI-Powered Climate Risk Assessment and Disaster Resilience
- Circular Economy and Sustainable Supply Chains through AI
- AI Policy, Regulation, and Global Collaboration for Sustainable Innovation

SUBMISSION PROCEDURE:

Researchers and practitioners are invited to submit papers for this special theme session
Responsible and Sustainable AI: Multi-Domain Innovations for Global Development
